Sl.No	Information Sought	Information Provided
1	Regarding NGLV, provide the current status of development of the vehicle and the LME-1100 engine.	The configuration finalization and detailing activities for both vehicle and engine are presently in progress. Associated parameters are under review and are being progressively consolidated as part of design and development process.
2	Provide the final vehicle configuration for NGLV and NGLV-H (i.e., the stage propellant loading, number of engines on each stage, etc.) and the gross liftoff mass of the vehicle.	NGLV is a three stage launch vehicle with the first two stages powered by LOX-Methane propulsion and the third stage using a Cryogenic LOX-Hydrogen propulsion. The stages are with an approximate propellant loading of 450 t, 120 t and 32 t respectively. First stage is with 9 clustered LOX-Methane Engines. Second uses twin LME engines, and third stage is with single Cryo Engine. NGLV-H has two solid strapons with 160 t propellant loading. Overall lift off mass is 1094 t.
3	Provide the targeted generic specifications for the LME-1100 engine (i.e., thrust for sea level engine and vacuum optimized engine, specific impulse for sea level engine and vacuum optimized engine, mass of the engine, chamber pressure etc.).	LME-1100 is with LOX-Methane propulsion system having with a thrust of 1100 KN. Specific impulse is ~310 s [sea level] and ~330 s [vacuum]. Targeted mass is around 1000 kg. Chamber pressure is being finalized.
4	Mention when the first hot fire of the LME-1100 is targeted for.	First hot fire of LME-1100 is targeted within 4 years.

5	Provide the payload mass target for NGLV and NGLV-H to LEO in expendable mode (if possible, please mention the exact target orbit parameter for the payload mass mentioned).	Payload mass target of NGLV and NGLV-H in LEO [Expendable mode] are 20 t and 30 t respectively for 400 km [LEO] orbit
6	Provide the payload mass target for NGLV and NGLV-H to GTO in expendable mode.	Payload mass target of NGLV and NGLV-H in GTO [Expendable mode] are 9 t and 12 t respectively.
7	The first stage of NGLV is planned for recovery and reuse. Is the first stage booster of NGLV-H is also planned to be recovered and reused.	NGLV-H first stage boosters are not planned to be recovered and reused.
8	Provide the payload mass target for NGLV and NGLV-H (if recovery is planned) to LEO in reusable mode.	NGLV payload to LEO with recovery is around 14 t.
9	Provide the payload mass target for NGLV and NGLV-H (if recovery is planned) to GTO in reusable mode.	NGLV payload to GTO with recovery is around 5 t.
10	Provide the estimated downrange distance at which the recovery will be done.	Being studied.
11	Provide an explanation for why a 3-stage design was chosen over a 2-stage design for NGLV.	Three stage design was preferred due to higher mass sensitivity and need to meet mission-specific velocity and orbital requirements more efficiently. Additional staging allows better distribution of propulsion and structural mass, improving overall performance.

1	I have applied for VSSC recruitment Advt. no. 335, Post no.1551 Physics in June 2025 and paid application fees of more than 700 rupees and finally submitted my application. Since then, after 2 months there have been no information regarding the date of conduct of examination by VSSC. In the application it is clearly mentioned that we would get the paid application fee back when we once write that examination. Being a student, money more than 700 as application is very large. If they are not conducting the exam, will they return it back? If they are conducting it, when will be the date or at least tentative date?	The refund of application fee will be processed only after the conduct of written Test as the refund is restricted to only those who attend the written test, as per extant norms. Decision regarding the date of exam is yet to be finalized, the applicant is advised to regularly check VSSC website as the exam date will be announced in VSSC website and will also be intimated to registered e-mail ID of the applicants in due course.
